

Syllabi are theory's infrastructure. They set a program for study, give structure to vast networks of ideas, and define an interpretative stance on the world. This one-day event will address who our theory syllabi represent, what theoretical objects or concerns they should address, and why we should continue to teach architectural theory today? The program will include the launch and presentation of the e-flux Architecture project Theory's Curriculum www.e-flux.com/architecture/curriculum as well as responses to the project by 12 panelists who will discuss the who, what and why of architectural theory today in a series of panel sessions.

Theory's Curriculum

Saturday
05/18/19
10am–5pm
 e-flux
 311 East Broadway
 New York, NY 10002

● Respondents

Marta Caldeira
Yale University

Dora Epstein Jones
Academy of Art University

John May
Harvard GSD

Tao Sule DuFour
Cornell University

Sanford Kwinter
Pratt Institute

Ana Miljacki
MIT

Mario Gooden
GSAPP

Peter Laurence
Clemson University

Meredith TenHoor
Pratt Institute

Sophie Hochhäusl
University of Pennsylvania

Sylvia Lavin
Princeton University

David Theodore
McGill University

● Provocateurs

Matthew Allen
University of Toronto

Antonio Furgieuele
Wentworth Institute of Technology

Ginger Nolan
University of Southern California

Joseph Bedford
Virginia Tech

Joseph Godlewski
Syracuse University

Bryan Norwood
University of Michigan

Elisa Dainese
Dalhousie University

Jeremy Lecomte
Sci-Arc

Ivonne Santoyo-Orozco
Iowa State University

Gabriel Fuentes
Marywood University

Jake Matatyaou
UCLA

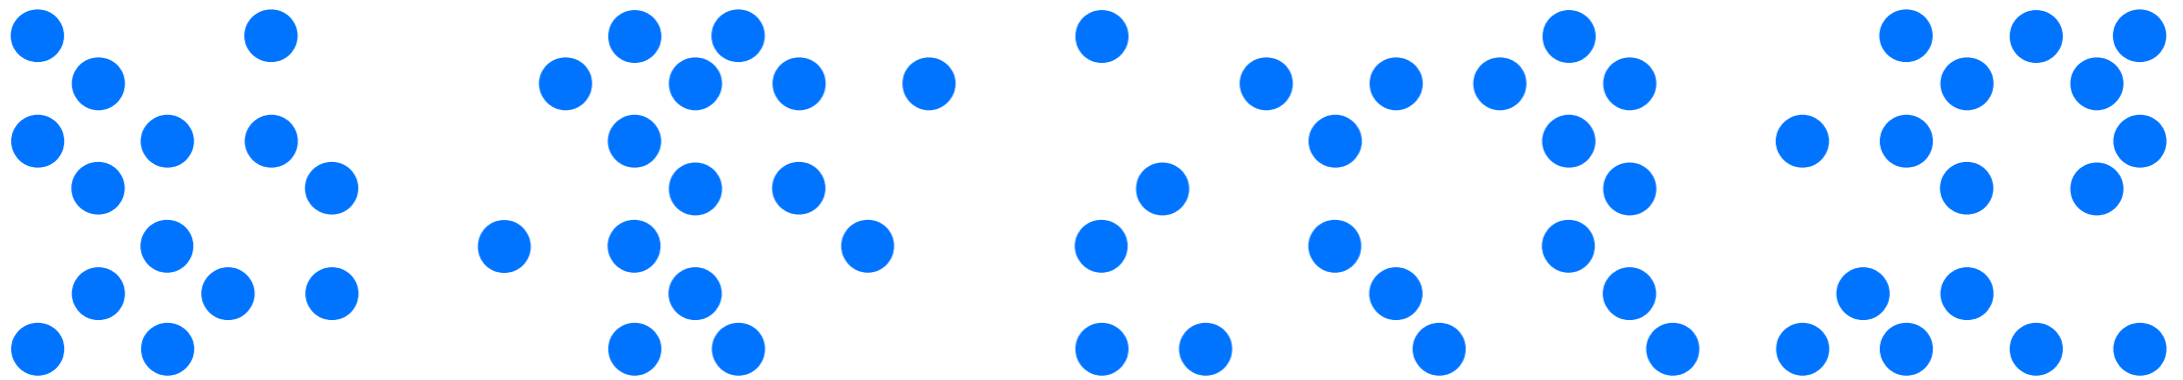

Marrikka Trotter
Sci Arc

This event is organized by Joseph Bedford. Thanks go to Nick Axel for institutional support and editorial guidance and to Joseph Godlewski for fund-raising support and programming advice. The event was made possible by the following sponsors:

Theory's Curriculum

Saturday
05/18/19
10am–5pm
e-flux
311 East Broadway
New York, NY 10002

10:00–11:00

Introduction

11:00–12:00

Session 1: Who?

Moderated by Joseph Godlewski

Meredith TenHoor, David Theodore, Tao Sule DuFour, Sophie Hochhäusl

13:00–14:00

Session 2: What?

Moderated by Ivonne Santoyo-Orozco

Ana Miljacki, John May, Mario Gooden, Dora Epstein Jones

14:15–15:15

Session 3: Why?

Moderated by Joseph Bedford

Sanford Kwinter, Sylvia Lavin, Marta Caldeira, Peter Laurence

15:30–16:30

Round-Table Debate

16:40–16:45

Closing Remarks

Joseph Bedford and Nick Axel

This event is organized by Joseph Bedford. Thanks go to Nick Axel for institutional support and editorial guidance and to Joseph Godlewski for fund-raising support and programming advice. The event was made possible by the following sponsors:

